

Dear Parents and Carers,

This week seems to have flown by and as we edge our way towards July, we begin to reflect on the amazing progress children have made across the school this year.

This week we have had workshops run by The Drama Hut, working with Year 4 and Year 5 pupils. Within these workshops, children in Year 4 explored Mayan culture and beliefs. Children particularly enjoyed learning about the Mayan Gods and how important chocolate was in their society. Year 5 pupils were fully immersed in their session exploring the characters within Shakespeare's Macbeth. They will be continuing with this as a theme for their English lessons this term.

The PTFA have continued to develop our polytunnel which is now home to a wonderful variety of plants and vegetables. Next week, children will begin to start visiting and learning how to care for these. A huge thank you to Ant and the team who have given up a huge amount of time to develop this area for our children.

The temperatures are set to stay high over the coming days. Please ensure children come to school with a water bottle and a sunhat. We also ask that sun cream is applied before they arrive at school to help keep them safe and comfortable in the warm weather. Thank you for your support.

Have a lovely weekend.

Book Recommendation

This week's book recommendation comes from Freddie in Year 6.

Book: The Worlds Worst Teachers by David Walliams.

"I really enjoyed reading this book because of the funny stories and jokes. Even the school names are funny! I would recommend this book to everyone in my class".
